IJES

Dear IERA Member

This is to invite you to submit a paper to be considered for inclusion in the International Journal of Employment Studies (IJES). The IJES provides a forum for the publication of research articles on any aspect of the theory and practice of employment relations, particularly those with an international comparative element. New forms of management, new methods of pay determination, new approaches by trade unions and new institutional mechanisms are reflected in the journal, which aims to contribute to the controversies surrounding employment relations in the twenty-first century.

Articles and reviews are expected to demonstrate theoretical and/or empirical originality. Publication is subject to double-blind peer refereeing.

Review articles that focus on employment relations events, teaching or issues within particular countries are also published. While all relevant topics will be considered, the editors encourage review articles concerning: workplace and organisational change; employee participation; equal opportunity and managing diversity; developing human resources; employment and labour market legislation and regulation; occupational health and safety; and case studies concerning employment relations in organisations, regions and industries.

Papers may be submitted to the Managing Editor at ijes_editor@iera.net.au, or the Assistant Editor for IERA at assistant_editor@iera.net.au.

Proposals for special issues of the journal are also welcome. If you are interested in co-editing a special issue, please send a brief expression of interest to the Managing Editor, George Lafferty (ijes_editor@iera.net.au).

Submission Details

Articles and reviews should be no more than 7,000 words in length and should be submitted in Microsoft Word format, double-spaced, with page numbers. The article should have a separate title page giving Title, Author(s), Institution to which the author(s) belong, and each author's contact details (email, postal address, etc). Please contact the Assistant Editor at assistant_editor@iera.net.au for more specific details regarding style and formatting.

Thank you

George Lafferty, Managing Editor.
